BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Leon Cushing Prince was born on May 15, 1875 to Morris Watson and Katherine Buck (Farham) Prince in Concord, New Hampshire. His father was a Methodist Minister, and Leon was also planning to become a minister. Leon studied at the Bordentown Military Academy in Bordentown, New Jersey and later at New York University where he became a member of Zeta Psi Fraternity. At nineteen, he was stricken with muscular atrophy and he had only partial usage of his legs.. He used a wheelchair for the remainder of his life. In 1897, after three years at New York University, Leon transferred to Dickinson College, where his father was a professor.

At Dickinson, Leon was a member of the Belles Lettres Society and Phi Beta Kappa. He graduated from Dickinson in 1898. He obtained his law degree from Dickinson Law School in 1900. In the same year, he became a member of the Pennsylvania Bar, the New York East Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and a faculty member in the History Department of Dickinson College. From 1903, until his death in 1937, Leon served as a faculty member of both the History Department and the Economics Department; he also served as chair of the History Department. Professor Prince also served as an advisor to the Belles Lettres Society and the Debating Team for many years.

On May 31, 1910, Leon married Julie Cecilia Delavan of Brooklyn, New York, one of his students. Julie only attended Dickinson for one year before their marriage. She was a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Professor Prince was a well-known author, who wrote many books including, A Bird's Eye View of History (1907) and A Man Who Dares (1920). He also edited selective speeches of Abraham Lincoln with Professor Lewis H. Chrisman that were published in 1912. In 1917, he received an honorary doctorate in literature from Albright College. From 1917 to 1918, he served as a Four Minute Man of the Committee on Public Information. Also during World WarI, he was a member of the Cumberland County Committee on Public Safety.

In 1928, running on the Republican ticket, Leon was elected as the state senator from the 31st District in Pennsylvania. He was re-elected for a second term in 1932, but was defeated in his bid for a third term in 1936. He fought to clean up the leadership of the Republican Party during his two terms as senator.

Prince was a member of the American Bar Association, the American Historical Association and the American Society of International Law. Professor Prince was also an early advocate of compulsory military training in schools and colleges, and because of this he was given a distinguished service certificate from the American Legion. He lectured in the area, speaking at local graduations, banquets, and conferences. He also preached at local churches on various occasions. Due to his admirable speaking ability, Leon gained recognition in the area. He was a devoted member of the Kiwanis Club in Carlisle. On January 31, 1937, Leon Cushing Prince died of a heart attack, leaving his wife, Julia and his daughter, Mary Prince Caum.

COLLECTION DESCRIPTION

The Leon Cushing Prince Collection is arranged into seven categories as follows: Correspondence; Legal Documents; Research Notes; Sermons; Speeches; Articles, Essays and Manuscripts; and Miscellaneous Materials. Within each category the material is arranged either chronologically or alphabetically. Also contained within the collection are two scrapbooks stored in oversized boxes. This collection documents the public life of Leon Cushing Prince after his graduation from Dickinson College in 1898. The majority of the collection is composed of his sermons and speeches.

The Correspondence includes mostly letters written to Leon Prince concerning his lectures and publications. This correspondence is arranged chronologically, with undated letters arranged to the front. They are mainly letters of admiration or thanks for speaking at particular events. There are also letters asking literary advice from Professor Prince. Also, in the Correspondence section are letters to his wife, Julie Delavan Prince and Mary Prince Caum offering condolences after the death of Leon Prince.

The Legal Documents section is also arranged chronologically. It is comprised of the contracts for the publication of A Bird's Eye View of American History, Selections from the Speeches and Letters of Abraham Lincoln, The Man Who Dares, and The Pharaoh's Question. This section also includes the resolutions and memorials passed by the Pennsylvania Senate and other organizations honoring Professor Prince after his death in 1937.

The Research Notes section highlights the extensive preparation that Professor Prince put into his speeches and sermons. This section is arranged alphabetically by folder title. Most of these notes were for speeches that he presented to service clubs, organizations in which he was highly involved, the Kiwanis Club of Carlisle in particular.

The Sermons section of the collection is the largest section in the collection, including over sixty sermons that Professor Prince delivered to various congregations throughout his life. The Sermons are arranged alphabetically by the biblical passage on which they are based, miscellaneous sermons being arranged to the rear.

The next section of the collection is Professor Prince's Speeches, which are arranged chronologically, undated miscellaneous material being arranged to the front. The majority of these speeches are for patriotic celebrations, like Washington's Birthday or Memorial Day. This section also includes speeches he made to the Dickinson College community and addresses given at various commencements. This section of the collection highlights Professor Prince's extensive speaking career. He began his public speaking career only a few years after his graduation from Dickinson in 1898.

The Articles, Essays, and Manuscripts section details the writings of Professor Prince. The dated material in this section is arranged chronologically, and the undated material is arranged alphabetically after the dated material. The articles and essays that Prince wrote concerned various topics including attacks on socialism, discussions on internationalism, the present state of the Methodist Church, historical topics such as the Middle Ages and the Continental Congress, and comments on the current politics of Pennsylvania. This section also includes the manuscripts of The Man Who Dares, An Eye for an Eye, and a novel "minus a name."

The Miscellaneous Material section includes a variety of Prince family papers. The materials are arranged alphabetically by folder title. Family items include an account book of Pyam Prince from 1783-1805 and a marriage certificate of Ammi Prince dated 1790. There are also a number of leaflets advertising Professor Prince's books and lectures. The majority of this section is newspaper clippings from 1904 until 1937. One folder is dedicated to obituaries of Professor Prince. His personal copy of the New Testament is also located in this section.

Also included in the Leon Cushing Prince Collection are two oversized scrapbooks, one dating from 1889 to 1915 and the other dating from 1912 to 1924. The scrapbooks include newspaper clippings about Prince, articles by Prince, miscellaneous correspondence and campaign materials. These scrapbooks are independently housed in oversized boxes.
