BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Frank Elmer Masland Jr. was born in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania on December 8, 1895 to Mary Esther Gossler and Frank Elmer Masland Sr. His family had been carpet manufacturers and established C. H. Masland & Sons in Philadelphia following the Civil War. As a boy, Frank E. Masland Jr. attended the Friends School of Philadelphia. In the fall of 1914, Masland entered Dickinson College as freshman. Active in the student social life at Dickinson, Masland joined Alpha Chi Rho fraternity and was noted as a participant in various student pranks of the day. Masland's education was cut short in 1917 when he left Dickinson College and went to New Jersey to join the war effort. Enlisting in the Navy during World War I, Masland was commissioned as the skipper of a sub-chaser off the Coast of New Jersey. During his time in the Navy, Masland and Mary Virginia Shap, the sister of a Dickinson classmate, married on January 2, 1918. Less than a year later, he was discharged and returned to Philadelphia.

Upon returning to Philadelphia, Masland joined his father at C. H. Masland & Sons. The company moved to Carlisle, Pennsylvania in 1919 due to labor problems and a space shortage. The company became one of the largest employers in Carlisle. By 1930, F. E. Masland Jr. assumed his position as the president of C. H. Masland & Sons. He remained the head of the company until 1960 and was chairman of the board until his retirement in 1971. In 1986, the company was acquired by Burlington Industries.

Along with his position as an entrepreneur, Masland also was an avid naturalist and environmentalist in the burgeoning preservation movement. His interest peaked in the mid twentieth century as he began exploring the Colorado River Valley, Canyonlands, the Everglades, the Navajo Mountains, Antarctica, Eastern Africa, and the Galapagos Islands. He became active with the National Park Service, serving on the National Parks Advisory Committee for over 20 years. As a prominent member of the National Park Service, he helped establish the Everglades National Park as well as the Canyonlands National Park. Moreover, he develop the National Park Service of Ethiopia after several meetings with Emperor Haile Selassie. Based on his travels, Masland published various articles and books on his work.

Masland was also interested in local environmental issues in Carlisle and surrounding areas. Believing that environmental preservation and the creation of parks could dramatically reduce “societal problems,” through an understanding of the past and hope for the future. Over his seventy years in Carlisle, he helped establish the Kings Gaps State Park in Carlisle, Thornwald Park in Carlisle, Letort Park in Carlisle, Children’s Lake in Boiling Springs, and the Reineman Sanctuary in Perry County. For his efforts, 1270 acres of preserved land was dubbed The Frank E. Masland, Jr. Natural Area in Perry County.

Masland’s involvement in the community was not limited to environmental work. His interest in education and politics influenced much of his community service in Carlisle. He served on the Board of Trustees at Dickinson College from 1946 to 1965. Furthermore, his involvement in the He also stayed active in local and national politics, often writing editorials on the rise of communism in America and the rise of the counterculture in American society.

After a long career as an entrepreneur, environmentalist, explorer, author, and community leader, Frank Masland died on July 30, 1994 at the age of 98.

COLLECTION DESCRIPTION

The Frank E. Masland Jr. Collection is housed in Document Boxes 1-16, 4 Oversized Folders, and 16 Photograph Folders. These were an original accession of Dickinson College. The materials in this collection are divided into the following 26 series: Environmental Correspondence, National Park Service Correspondence, Political Correspondence, Personal Correspondence, Travel Correspondence, Dickinson Correspondence, Religion Correspondence, Community Correspondence, Media Correspondence, Business Correspondence, Miscellaneous Correspondence, Biography, Journals, Magazine and Journal Articles, Books and Pamphlets, Newspaper Editorials, Unpublished Essays, Speeches, Reports, Albums, News Clippings, Ephemera, Miscellaneous, Oversized, and Photographs. Each series has been separately described and inventoried.

This collection primarily provides evidence of the personal and public life of F. E. Masland Jr., environmentalist, preservationist, explorer, entrepreneur, author, and community leader. Also found in this collection is correspondence from prominent twentieth century figures such as leaders of the National Park Service, journalists, politicians throughout the world, and American presidents. Information on Dickinson College is featured prominently throughout this collection through the close association of F. E. Masland with the institution during most of his life.

This collection offers information on a number of social, political, economic, and historic topics through the eyes of a man who witnessed nearly the entire twentieth century. Some of these broader topics include the industrialization of the United States, south central Pennsylvania community, the rise of environmentalism, reactions to communism, the rise of the New Left, and twentieth-century exploration.

The processing of this collection was made possible by a grant from the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission.

SERIES 1 – CORRESPONDENCE – ENVIRONMENTAL

Series 1, Environmental Correspondence, consists of 149 folders of letters received and written by F. E. Masland Jr. The series pertains to Masland's environmental work on both local and national levels. It is organized alphabetically by the name of the individual or organization Masland is corresponding with. The series is then arranged by date. The letters range in date from the 1950s to the 1990s and cover various topics, including the establishment of Appalachian Trail Preservation, the establishment of various recreational parks, and his association with various environmental clubs.

For more information on F. E. Masland Jr.'s environmental work also see National Park Service Correspondence, Political Correspondence, and Travel Correspondence.
